The Science and Clinical Practice of Sleep Medicine

One Course. Two Concentrations. All You Need.

Plan to attend this 4-day review of the fundamentals of the science and clinical practice of sleep medicine. Designed for chest physicians, Sleep Medicine 2008 will offer relevant, practical instruction to help you improve your knowledge of sleep medicine and your patient care skills. The latest technology and tools will be reviewed, so you can gain a clear understanding of the diagnostic resources available and how you can use them to improve your practice.

Ideal for clinicians who are new to sleep medicine, or for current practitioners seeking a review, this course will provide an overview of sleep disorders, fundamentals of clinical assessment, diagnosis and treatment options, and an update on current research efforts in sleep medicine. Take advantage of:

- A review of clinical assessment, diagnosis, and treatment options, as well as information on research efforts in sleep medicine.
- Sessions to update you on specific sleep problems impacting your patients, including sleep apnea, restless legs syndrome, insomnia, narcolepsy, parasomnias, and circadian rhythm disorders.
- Sessions to address physical assessment and clinical management of patients, along with a review of the technology and tools available for your use.
- Clinical case management workshops, so you can apply what you learn to typical case presentations and discuss management of common problems with leading experts. An optional evening workshop will offer additional hands-on practice.
- An optional "Bring Your Tough Cases" session, so you can present your unique or difficult cases to a panel of experts for input.
- Question and answer sessions so you can discuss specific concerns with the faculty.

Sleep disorders are a major personal health and public safety issue in the United States. There is accumulating evidence demonstrating how sleep has a direct correlation and effect on the human physiological system, including impairment of glucose tolerance, increasing cortisol levels, and lowering thyrotropin concentrations. Obstructive sleep apnea, as one sleep disorder, affects more than 12 million people in the United States alone, yet it remains undiagnosed in most people. Sleep disorders affect all races, both genders, and all age groups. The prevalence of sleep disorders is so significant that evaluation and treatment must become the province of many physicians' clinical practices. Learn more about these various areas from experts in the field, and apply the information you acquire to your daily clinical practice.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Review the latest information concerning the epidemiology, pathophysiology, and diagnosis of common, and less common, clinical manifestations of sleep apnea.

Discuss the latest research regarding the treatment of obstructive sleep apnea, including newer modalities of positive airway pressure therapy, dental appliances, and surgical treatments.

Explore a comprehensive approach for diagnosing and managing sleep problems other than apnea, such as parasomnias, narcolepsy, insomnia, and restless legs syndrome.

Describe the critical components of the diagnostic evaluation of insomnia, including the clinical interview, sleep logs, actigraphy, and indications for polysomnography. Also, review treatments for insomnia, such as cognitive behavior and pharmacologic therapy.

Compare the impact of esophageal reflux, and other esophageal disorders, with normal sleep and sleep disorders, based on recent information.

Examine the interaction of depression with normal sleep and sleep disorders.

Review circadian-related sleep disorders and the basics of sleep/wake and circadian physiology.

Recognize the basics of polysomnographic monitoring, including EEG, respiration, body movements, and how to score a sleep study.

Review the new AASM Manual for Scoring of Sleep and Associated Events.

Review normal sleep in children and adolescents, and learn to recognize and manage common sleep disorders in these populations.

Discuss ethical and legal issues encountered in sleep medicine. For example, patients with sleep disorders can have a higher risk of automobile accidents.

ACCP LEARNING CATEGORIES

ACCP Learning Categories organize all ACCP education activities based on how education is delivered to promote a wider variety of educational methodologies. The sessions presented during Sleep Medicine 2008 are clearly labeled to identify the type of instruction and methodology used, so you can determine how the presentation will meet your learning style and educational goals. ACCP Learning Categories have no predetermined requirements and will automatically be reflected on the ACCP's new online CME certificate. The six learning categories include:

- ACCP Learning Category I: Lecture-Based
- ACCP Learning Category II: Self-Directed
- ACCP Learning Category III: Evidence-Based
- ACCP Learning Category IV: Case- and Problem-Based
- ACCP Learning Category V: Simulation
- ACCP Learning Category VI: Quality Improvement

Maintenance of Licensure

The ACCP Learning Categories are further subcategorized into "Maintenance of Licensure" (MOL) areas. The subcategorization is very helpful for applying CME to state requirements. All of the sessions in this program are subcategorized as MOL: Scope of Practice-Sleep Medical Education.

More information about the ACCP Learning Categories is available online at www.chestnet.org/education.index.php.

CME STATEMENT

CME Hours by ACCP

The ACCP designates this educational activity for a maximum of 27.5 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Hours by Other Organizations

This continuing education activity is designated for up to 32.5 Continuing Education Recognition Points (CERPs) of category A under provider #00011747 of the American Association of Critical-Care Nurses. An application to award continuing education credit is being submitted to the American Association of Sleep Technologists.

ACCREDITATION STATEMENT

The ACCP is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

The ACCP remains strongly committed to providing the best available evidence-based clinical information to participants of this educational activity and requires an open disclosure of any potential conflict of interest identified by our faculty members. It is not the intent of the ACCP to eliminate all situations of potential conflict of interest but rather to enable those who are working with the ACCP to recognize situations that may be subject to question by others. All disclosed conflicts of interest are reviewed by the educational activity course director/chair, the Continuing Education Committee, or the Conflict of Interest Review Committee to ensure that such situations are properly evaluated and, if necessary, resolved. The ACCP educational standards pertaining to conflict of interest are intended to maintain the professional autonomy of the clinical experts inherent in promoting a balanced presentation of science. Through our review process, all ACCP CME activities are ensured of independent, objective, scientifically balanced presentations of information. Disclosure of any or no relationships will be made available on-site during all educational activities.
